Operational Considerations

- How to conduct a "Size Up" of the incident or event
- Liaison with Emergency Responders
- Emergency Operations Planning
- ICS in Event Planning and Exercise
- Resources for the "Next Steps" of Training

Size-Up

- SITUATIONAL AWARENESS
- What has occurred?
- What is the current status of the emergency?
- Is there anyone injured or trapped?
- What resources do we need?
- Does the emergency fall within my scope of training?

Emergency Responders

- Who is the Incident Commander?
- Where is the Incident Command Post?
- How do I effectively Liaison with the IC?
- What communication tools do they use?
- What resources will I need?

Emergency Operations Plans

- Integrating ICS concepts into the EOP's under Command and Control
- Think about facilities and best practices for door numbering, etc.
- Think about your communications systems
- What future training would you like "Key Personnel" to have?

Event Planning and Exercise

- Integrating ICS concepts into your current planned events.
- Complete documentation of the event using an Incident Action Plan.
- Communicate with your responders any large event planning.
- It's a great first step to getting personnel to utilize the components of the system.

OASSN Fall SUMMIT
September 26, 2019

After the Adrenaline...

As we think of other assaults, large fires, and other major incidents, it is tempting to think of this event "ending" where the shooting ended. But the lessons learned are not self-evident. In many cases, however, this event is just the beginning of the total response. This event is a catalyst for a new level of response and the need to transition to a "New Normal."

The OASSN 2019 Summit will focus on these recovery issues including the following topics: Immediate, active support, grieving, and other issues. Please save the date for this important component of critical safety and security planning.
